Utsava | Natasha Kumar

Courtesy of Natasha Kumar

97 x 134cm. This work on paper is framed to museum standard with a hand stained and waxed ash frame, split baton hanging and sub-frame by Gloucester Room, Marylebone.

Natasha Kumar's Utsava is a celebration of life, family and belonging. It combines ancient Indian aesthetic and identity through actual, figurative representation and abstract sensibility.

This is a unique work on paper, in Kumar's signature bold colours; brilliant bright blues and her multi-layered style; drawing, collograph, etching, screenprint and 22 carat gold leaf.

She has incorporated architectural motifs such as the Jali screen and pictorial elements from Mughal miniatures. The drummers beat the rhythm of everyday life, the swirling, dancing women, hand in hand, capture a universal joyful human experience. The infinite geometric design links all, a microcosm against the macrocosm, the white floral motifs are uppermost, scattered liberally throughout the scene. It is Utsava, a joyous occasion.

Born 1976, Natasha Kumar is an established British Indian artist based in the UK. She first exhibited at the Royal Academy Summer show at the age of 17 and has since exhibited regularly in the UK art fairs and worldwide. Her work is in private collections in India and in Soho House, Mumbai.

Untitled | Harm Gerdes

Untitled (2024) evokes the warmth and transition of an Indian summer. The vibrant, rich colors and flowing forms suggest a final, fleeting burst of energy, much like the warm, extended autumn period the term refers to. This gives the painting a feeling of nostalgic beauty and seasonal change. The dynamic shapes and interplay of hues evoke a sense of both serenity and subtle tension, embodying the natural cycles of transformation.

Harm Gerdes lives and works in Athens and graduated from the Düsseldorf Kunstakademie in 2020. His paintings are abstract explorations of colour, composition, and materiality, treating them as sculptural objects. He has had successful solo exhibitions in cities such as Milan and Seoul, exhibited at Frieze London and Art Basel Miami, and was recently featured in the FT Weekend.
